

KALAMU BUSH CAMP

SOUTH LUANGWA NATIONAL PARK - LUAMFWA

Classic Wilderness Camp

Kalamu Bush Camp nestles under giant fig, mahogany and African ebony trees on a bend in the hippo-filled Luangwa River looking out over a wide sandy bed bracketing a ribbon of cool, blue water while crocodiles line its banks. This typical tented 'bush camp' consists of five Meru-style en-suite tents, each one with a different outlook on the Luangwa River. The central areas – the plunge pool and deck and shaded bar and dining area – maximise the river views. The understated luxury interiors blend with the solar heating and light in this environmentally friendly camp.

The deeper pools of the river and a nearby seasonal lagoon hold large vocal pods of hippo and crocodiles. These waters attract elephant, buffalo, puku, impala, yellow baboon and other species in increasing numbers as the season progresses and other water sources dry up. Activities at Kalamu focus on the Luangwa River with both game drives and walks exploring its banks, fringing woodland and open scrub.
